THAN THE FIRST DAY.

Although the average scores made at the traps yesterday in the wind-up of the Sait Lake Gun club's annual tournament were not quite as large as those of the previous date, yet the day's shooting proved equally successful. Players.

Jack Meinecke stated last evening that in all probability he would have to leave for Kansas City or St. Louis at once to secure the rest of the players to make up his team. The affairs of the Park team have been in stating up for the past two weeks on account of the different officials failing to get together and agreeing on a plan of campaign for the coming season. Many of the men with whom Meinecke has winter became impatient at the delay and secured berths with other teams. When finally notified to go ahead with of the men with whom Meinacke has been in correspondence for the past winter became impatient at the delay and secured berths with other teams. When finally notified to go ahead with the signing of players the Park City captain found the picking rather slim and will have to go east in order to get men up to the high standard required by the Park people. Meinecks states, however, that he has secured Rednond and Pendergast, the two eastern players, who, with Cain, Walt Seare and Gelrhardt, give him the start for a good line-up. The captain will leave for Park City this morning and make arrangements for his eastern trip.

Utah-Idaho sheep quarantine injunction case was commenced today in the United States court before Judge Beatty. Exsenator Brown, J. H. Moyle and Lindsay R. Kogers of Sait Lake appeared for the Utah sheepmen, while Idaho s interests were in the hands of Attorney General Marthn, who was assisted by ex-Attorney General Hayes.

The larger part of the day was taken up in examination of Dr. Rowe, a government stock inspector, who, at the request of President Smith of the Utah Wool Growers' association, had inspected the quarantined sheep. He stated positively no disease existed among the sheep held under the procamation of Idaho's governmer. He was cross-examined at great length.

No Crushing Burden Will Be Imposed on Empire.

London, March 28 .-- In the house of lords today, Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, announced that no further military operations by the British troops in China were contemplated for the present.

before long to withdraw or reduce its necessarily slow with the refugee government. On the broad questions, however, there was a practical unanimity among the powers.

The allies had agreed that they were

FIGHTING SHEEF QUARANTINE

The ames had agreed that they were not at war with China and desired to derive no territorial advantages from the present events. They also recognized the binding nature of the existing treaties and desired to maintain the open door in commercial and economical questions, while within the spheres where existed preferential rights there should be equality for all the powers concerned.

The British minister at Pekin had been instructed to be moderate in his demands and the government only desired to strengthen the guards sufficiently to insure the safety of the legations. In regard to the question of indemnity now under discussion it had been decided that the claims should be forwarded by the powers in one lot.

Will Impose No Harsh Burdens. As to the sources whence the in-demnity should be paid, it was not desired to impose on China any crush-ing burden. To do so would be con-trary to the policy of the British gov-ernment, which policy was to respect the existence of China as a power. He did not despair of seeing China re-formed. The people possessed many did not despair of seeing China reformed. The people possessed many good qualities. Both the British and German governments had informed China that it was not desirable, while negotiating with the powers as a whole, that she should enter into a private arrangement involving territorial or finacial conditions with any other power. Russia had again assured Great British railway was only temporary and without prejudice to the interests involved. Great Britain had not waived her rights in connection with these railroads nor had she ignored the interests of the shareholders.

these railroads nor had she ignored the interests of the shareholders.

As to sources of revenue, he thought the maritime customs might be readjusted so as to impose a real, instead of a nominal, 5 per cent ad valorem duty. Certain free articles ought to be subjected to duty, but caution was recessary lest the interests of British commerce be damaged.

Lord Lansdowne referring to the Lord Lansdowne, referring to the Anglo-German agreement, said that when this was being negotiated the German government gave Great Britain to understand, in the German view Manchuria was not a place where they considered they had any influence. He thought, however, that the point did Butter and Cheese Exhibit Will Be not deserve too much attention, pointing out that the only two treaty ports in Manchuria were New Chwang and Ta Lien Wan, with regard to which explicit assurances had been given by Russia. Lord Lansdowne said he had Russia. Lord Lansdowne said he had seen newspaper reports suggesting that Count von Buelow, the German imperial chancellor, had interpreted the agreement differently from Great Britain, but the point did not seem vital, because all the powers, including Germany, had repeatedly declared that their policy was to maintain the Integrity of China.

Objects to Mystery.

Objects to Mystery.

In regard to the reported Manchurian agreement. Lord Lansdowne said he was not in a position to pass final opinion on the matter. The government would not criticise in any carping spirit any arrangement regarding Manchuria which was in the nature of a modus vivendi. It was suggested that the versions of the treaty published were simply trial balloons on the part of some official or pure inventions designed to bring about a misunderstanding. He added:

"Nothing would give us greater pleasure than to co-operate with the Russian government in disposing of such an unworthy object. If Russia would only, by communicating the real text of the agreement, enable Great Britain to put an end to this misconception, we should be prepared to co-operate with her."

What militated against any hopes had been the mystery in which the negotiations have been involved throughout. Count Lainsdorff (the Bussian minister of foreign affairs) had, however, informed the British ambassand of at St. Petersburg that it was that she had no intention of seeking that guarantee in any acquisition of territory, or in any acquisition of territory, or in any acquisition of territory, or in any actual or virtual protectorate over Manchuria.

If the document really fell within the language used by Count Lamsdorff, his majesty's government would certainly not object to it. Until these uncertainties were removed, Great Britain could not do otherwise than adhere to the view that it was undesirable that China, at a time when she was negotiating with the whole of the powers, should simultaneously enter into a private and separate arrangement involving the territorial and financial conditions with another power. That was the language that government had used to China, and it was almost precisely the language which had been used by to China, and it was almost precisely the language which had been used by the German government.

His majesty's government would be tenacious in matters of principle. In matters of detail they realized they must not always expect to have their own way. They would use their best endeavors to bring the present negotiations to a close, and to eliminate a situation which was inconvenient and fraught with danger to all concerned in the negotiations.

JAPAN IN FIGHTING TRIM. As a Naval Power She is Superior to

New York, March 28 .- If the Japanese ntend to rely largely upon their avail able sea power in a contest with Russia, Japan is now not only equal, but superior in ferce to Russia, says the Washington correspondent of the Times. The Russian fleet now stationed in Asia and available for service against Japan numbers thirty-one ves-sels, exclusive of torpedo boats, with an aggregate donnage of 130,940. The Japanese fleet, exclusive of torpedo boats, consists of fitty-two yessels of 207,804 tons. Not only does Japan enfoy a superiority of tonnage to the extent of nearly 17,000 tons, but she has some ships of very great power, and the promise of great efficiency, and she would enter the struggle with a prestige that would at least worry the people of that would at least worry the people of Russia's fieet available at present for service against Japan includes some large chips, but her battleships are smaller and older than those of Japan Japan's list includes about all her navy, the fleet being stationed at home for the most part, the cruises of vessels being chiefly for practice and in waters with which is is desired to acquire most familiarity.

the fleet of Japan.

As to the outcome of a naval conflict between Russia and Japan, naval officers hesitate to predict. Russia has had no recent naval experience worth mentioning. Japan's war with China proved her to be infinitely superior to China, but only a conflict with Russia would prove anything of the relative ability of the two nations. While Japan's prestige is great, and would nerve the navy to desperate conflict with Russia, naval officers say that Japan cannot always expect to win. Japan cannot always expect to win

Manchurian Convention.

Washington, March 28 .- The Russian authorities have given no definite and positive assurances to the state department that the dismissal of Mc-Levy Brown, the high official of the Korean government, was not due in any way to kussian interference. The Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, had an way to Russian interference. The Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, had an extended conference with Ambassador Hay today. The ambassador was without information as to what had been done as to the Manchurian agreement. Although the general question of China was gone over, yet the chief purpose of the visit was to clear up the reports that Russia had been instrumental in the removal of Mr. Brown.

Count Cassini's visit resulted in the fullest assurance that the affair was not one in which Russia had been concerned, and that it was purely a matter of the domestic affairs of Korea, which the Korean officials had carried out according to their own desires.

During the course of the interview there was a further reference to Russia's purpose in Manchuria. This was on precisely the same lines as the ambassador had before laid down, but with more particularity. For instance, it more particularity. For instance, it was made to appear that this particular agreement between Russia and China is really nothing more than a modus is really nothing more than a modus vivendi. It is purely temporary in character, according to the Russian contention, to restore law and order under Chinese authority in Manchuria, and provide for the gradual withdrawal of the Russian troops.

Secretary Hay's callers today also included Lord Pauncefole and the German ambassator, and the Japanese minister, all of whom were concerned in the status of Chinese adiairs, and particularly the final outcome of the Manchurian question. Little definite additional information was developed.

MEETING OF UTAH DAIRYMEN

ASSOCIATION'S ANNUAL GATH-ERING NEXT WEEK.

The Dairymen's association of Utah will hold its eighth annual meeting in Salt Lake April 4 and 5. All dairymen are invited to meet with the as- 200, sociation, whether they are members of the organization or not. The main feature of the meeting will be the butter and cheese exhibit. The largest amount total is $170, while special premiums will aggregate $100 more.

The pro rata fund, out of which every worthy exhibit is awarded some recognition, is more substantial this year than ever before. Copies of the rules governing the exhibit are being sent out to all the dairymen and those intending to send in specimens of their work are urged to notify Secretary Linfield as early as possible.

"These annual meetings," said Mr. Linfield yesterday, "afford an opportunity for the dairymen of the state to get together, and to get acquainted. They may thereby broaden their horizon by discussing their successes and failures with their brother workers. It is an opportunity to compare their work with that of others from all parts of the state, to discuss with experts of the state, to discuss with experts the difficulties encountered in the work of the past year and to learn how they may be overcome. It is also an op-portunity to add to their store of knowledge and dairying and kindred topics."

Dayton. O., March 23.—George W. Phatcher, a claim agent, was taken into custody by the police here today on the charge of forgery. It is charged that he orged a note amounting to $32,000 with the name of the late P. P. Mast, a millionaire manufacturer of Springfield, O.

was found dead Wednesday night in the lodging house of Mrs. Evans at 159

Twenty-fifth street. Death is supposed to have been the result of acute alcoholism. The body was removed to Lindquist's undertaking parlors, where it will be held until his relatives are heard from.

Among the dead man's effects was a letter from a son, Michael Mulvaney of Nathrope, Colo. The son agknowledges the receipt of a letter from the father, evidently asking for money, as the letter states that the writer has sent him $20$. The letter also chastizes the father for the life he is leading, and expresses the hope that he will reform and return home. The son has been nottified by the police.

Chief of Police Conlisk last night received a telegram from Michael Mulvaney, son of the dead man, residing at Nathrope, Colo., asking that the body be held until other members of the family could be communicated with.
